Join us on September 29th! The USGBC North Florida Chapter is hosting its engaging Volunteer Summit, its first Master Speaker Luncheon of the season. Come meet Chapter leadership, hear about our ambitious goals to achieve a sustainable community and green buildings for all in North Florida in this generation, and learn how you can get more involved.

During the luncheon, we will hear from Dr. James M. Chansler, P.E., Chief Operating Officer at JEA. Dr. Chansler has been with JEA since June, 1997. He has worked in City and County Government for 38 years in various capacities ranging from Assistant City Manager and Department Head to Laboratory Technician and Utilities Plant Operator. He also taught Engineering Technology at Western Kentucky University for eight years.

Dr. Chansler is a Registered Professional Engineer in two states and holds degrees in public administration, urban and regional planning and earth sciences. He has written numerous articles on utility engineering and organizational leadership.

The 2nd Annual Volunteer Summit will occur immediately prior to the luncheon. All are welcome to attend and receive chapter leadership training including DiSC personality assessment. The summit is free which includes parking to current and potential volunteers who RSVP.
