Please join us in learning about green schools. Discussion will include an overview of how Duval County Public Schools (DCPS) is becoming more sustainable and promoting green practices within the district. It includes where we were, where we are now, and programs that have been implemented. It will also include benchmarking, setting guidelines and goals, building commissioning, energy results, reporting metrics, and an overview of the DCPS Green Champions program.

Susan P. Carew,
E.I., LEED AP

Susan Carew is the Director of Facility Engineering & Energy with DCPS. Susan earned a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering from The University of South Florida in 1986.

Susan worked as an Account Executive for an energy services company for over 18 years. While there she served as team leader for performance contracting projects and major service accounts. She joined Duval County Schools in April 2005 as a Project Manager for mechanical projects. In August 2005, Susan became the Director of Facility Engineering & Energy for DCPS. Currently, Susan is responsible for developing and implementing DCPS' Energy Conservation program, managing mechanical and electrical renovation projects, assisting with mechanical and electrical design reviews for new schools and major renovations, developing and implementing DCPS' building commissioning program for new and existing schools and creating and managing DCPS' Green Champions program.
